2014 LAWYERS ON THE FAST TRACK

RACHEL E. LICAUSI

Associate, Flaster/Greenberg

Practice Profile: Licausi practices commercial litigation and family law in the firm's litigation department. She represents corporate entities and individuals in a variety of industries in resolving complex business disputes, and she has also guided clients through the mediation and arbitration process.

She is also a member of the firm's family law department, where she represents clients in matters including divorce, alimony, child support, custody and prenuptial agreements.

She helped obtain a jury verdict for client Penske Logistics in a whistleblower case in which an employee claimed he was fired for raising safety concerns at work. She was also second chair in a high-profile preliminary injunction matter involving a National Basketball Association player's alleged ownership of sports memorabilia.

"Rachel is a standout attorney at Flaster/Greenberg, working closely with me and other shareholders on matters ranging from high-profile litigations, to complex business disputes, to family law matters involving substantial marital estates," said the firm's managing shareholder, Peter Spirgel.

Leadership Activity: Licausi has been chair of the firm's associate committee since 2009.

Pro Bono and Civic Work: Licausi was first chair in a federal trial representing a prisoner against multiple defendants regarding the prisoner's exhaustion of administrative remedies under the Prison Litigation Reform Act. She also works on pro bono divorce cases in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and is co-founder of Camden County's annual lobster bake to benefit the Larc School, which has raised more than $40,000 for students with special needs.

Experience: Current employer, 2007-present.

Education: Boston University School of Law, J.D., 2007; Moravian College, B.A., 2004.
